

David Parr

Policy and Technical Director

British Safety Council

David is an experienced health and safety professional with over 20 years' experience of developing and implementing health and safety management systems within a variety of sectors.

David has been heading Audit and Technical Services at the organisation for the last six years and has been instrumental in the development, ongoing management and delivery of the British Safety Council's audit and consultancy services and products, including the remodelling of the prestigious Five Star best practice audit.

David is a member of the BSI HS1 committee and was also co-opted onto the development panel of the forthcoming BSI guidance on the new ISO 45001 safety management standard.

He also provides technical management for specific health and safety consultancy projects for clients within the UK and internationally. Such projects have included bespoke auditing of Emirates National Oil Company and the Dubai Road and Transport Authority.

During 2015, David oversaw a safety advisory project for the Royal Household which provided a structured improvement plan for the client's health and safety management systems.

Prior to joining the British Safety Council David was Health and Safety Manager for Lancashire County Council Care Services Directorate where he had overall responsibility for their safety management systems and arrangements.

David also acts as the British Safety Council's internal health and safety advisor and has ensured the organisation's safety management system has been independently certificated to the BS:OHSAS 18001 standard for the last three years.
