

Jeremy Bevan
Policy Manager
HSE

Jeremy Bevan joined HSE in 1986, and worked for 18 years as a health and safety inspector, inspecting, investigating and enforcing in a wide range of sectors across the West, East and South Midlands. Since switching to the policy profession in 2004, he has been responsible for HSE's work on improving health and safety for migrant and other vulnerable workers, and its approach to small businesses. He also managed the work of its Myth Busters Challenge Panel. Now based in HSE's Westminster office, he has been joint policy manager for HSE's blue tape/business burdens work since January 2017.
