

Hemant Sethi
Country Manager
British Safety Council

Appointed as Country Manager India of the British Safety Council in September 2017.

As the Country leader for the British Safety Council, Hemant played an integral part in managing the successful launch of the British Safety Council's India operation. Some of his key contributions during this time include the recruitment and onboarding of a local team, growing the British Safety Council's presence in the market and identifying the critical areas of impact (campaigning) for the British Safety Council moving forward.

Prior to this, Hemant worked with British Airways in South Asia in various management roles in Commercial, Customer Experience & Operations.

From 2014 to 2017, Hemant held the post of Head of Corporate Sales, India with British Airways, where over three years, he contributed towards substantially improving the airline's commercial performance.

Prior to this, Hemant had roughly 10 years of management experience with British Airways being responsible for customer experience and operations at Mumbai, Male and Chennai. Whilst Hemant is not a qualified Health & Safety practitioner, an integral part of his operational management responsibilities included managing the safety and well-being of colleagues and overall aviation safety for British Airways across South Asia. During this period, he also held several leadership positions with industry bodies including being the Chairperson with Mumbai's Airport Operators Council during 2013-14.
